When the proposition came, it pleased and surprised the thoughtful and conservative of the community. It was not only fair; it was liberal. The disposition of the men in the enterprise ceessed to be to ask nothing more than was right, to impose no hard conditions, and to act throughout in good faith. Every step in the negotiations has attengthened this early opinion. Where a change in the details has been suggested it has been readily assented to by the gentlemen who came to us with the proposition. It may be that other labeled and supposition the men of their presences with us at our labeled and supposition. to be. And we remember that one of the girning to turn their attention to heavy "kickers" said he was against Camden weight fabrics, and this of itself is suff because the Senator was a Republican (on the tariff question), while this particular "kicker" was a Democrat.

It soom now that the Republican support and the Democratic opposition were both founded on a serious misspeprehension of Mr. Camden's tariff views. For Mr. Camden now comes out and takes his position with the President as the President declares his position in his remarkable message to Congress. Mr. Camden finds the message "able and practical, original and foreible, and if Congress addresses itself to the subject of reform (that is, revenue reform) with the same patriotic carnestness the Executive has, the country will have great reason to rejoice and look forward to increased prosperity." The quotation is from Mr. Camden's letter to the Register.

It is a significant fact that Mr. Camden and Mr. John J. Davis, of Clarksburg, are both enthusiastic in their approval of the message. Now we have always admired Mr. Davis for the frankness and boldness and consistency with which he has proclaimed the contract of the company of the probability of the contract of the company of the message. Since Mr. Camden's conversion it becomes more than ever apparent that the Rapublicans in the Legislature made no mistake to let him stand or fall according to the voice of his own party. It would be particularly humiliating to the Republicans of West Virginia to have the view now expressed by Mr. Camden coming from a United States Senator elected by their assistance.

The State could be no worse off in this regard with Colonel Lucas in the seat, and it may be that Judge Faulkner would not go so far against the interests of his State and the country. We do not secuse Mr. Camden of dealing unfairly, for he may not have changed his views until after reading the President's free trade

The Republican Convention and the Pro-

To the Editor of the Intell To the Elitor of the Intelligencer.

Sin:—I desire to call you attention to the manner in which the Prohibition politicians are working. Year after year the Republicans of West Viginia have gone to the polls with atmost hopeless determination; and now, while there is good reason to hope for reward for our past efforte, here come these Prohibitionists to complicate matters. A very little of the ganuine article of good sense just now, exercised by the Republican party, will prove profitable. If the Republican convention dallies with the Third party, they invite defeat.

Sime times a community gots a last chance, and always that community is wise when it realizes the situation. The Institutence is not wise enough to know that this in the last chance. It takes less wisdom to know a good thing when it is offered, and the pending bridge proposition is a thing of that kind.

Wheeling has waited long in the hope of seeing herself connected with the Ohio shore by a railroad bridge open to all comers on equal terms. It is precisely this that is now offered to us. A Remarkable Conversion.

Something—the sting of defeat or the reading of free trade pamphlets—hes quite upset Mr. Camden on the tariff question. It is only a little while since he and his friends were seeking Republican votes for him, and certain members of his own party were violently opposing him, on the ground that he was as strong a protectionist as any in West Virginia, where we have some of very pronounced type.

In his losing contest for the United States Senste Mr. Camden did get some Republican support because he declared himself a protectionist and was so believed to be. And we remember that one of the Witshers, and he was many the content of the steple going into consumption work by week foots up well. But buyers are operating as cautiously as at any time during the sesson. They are not inclined to anticipate future wants to any noticeable extent. Business in the main is well distributed over the market, there being no special inquiry for any important description of the material. There will be nome offerings of lots of wood which holders desire to close out at barging the content of the present month; except for this, concessions are not the role. The spathy of buyers has been increased by the uncertainty as to the outcome of the tariff agitation, but the dullness is not entirely on that account. It is between seasons in the goods trade, and usually a dull period in the market, owing to the approaching close of the year. There has been no charge in prices. Sales aggregate 508,000 pounds, against 672,000 pounds last week.

what stines, not owing rainer to searchy of No. 1 Lebigh brands, on account of delays in getting fuel at furnaces, as well as a moderate lack of No. 2 fron. In Cincinnati and the immediate vicinity a light business has been transacted in pig fron, but the market tributary to that city has developed quite a large volume of business, many of the larger orders being for delivery scattered through the early part of next year. It has all been done, however at close prices.

There have been reports or an expectation on the part of railmakers that some 200,000 tone of steel rails for 1883 delivery would be ordered during Documber. But not over one-fifth of that quantity has been reported contracted for as yet. There is a visible attempt to be cheerful overthe from and steel markets' prospects.
